As another school year begins...

...we're still here to support your students and their education in whatever form that takes this year. Whether their formal education is taking place in the classroom or your living room, The Museum of Flight is here to support and enrich their studies in history, social studies, and even STEM!

Keep an eye out on future emails outlining new remote learning opportunities, attend a virtual program (two great opportunities below!), and/or schedule a visit to explore and discover in person!
